President Serves Notice on Congress

IF SENATE FAILS TO ACT

Representative McCall-Regards It as Solemn Obligation at This

Washington, Feb. 20.-The first authoritive announcement that President Taft will call an extra session of Congress if the Senate fails to act on the erally understood to have been approved ended as preachers. by the president, follows:

gradually coming to recognize that, with LITTLETON ENTERS THE I believe Republican senators are the certain prospect of an extra session unless they bring the reciprocity bill to a vote there will be very serious inconvenience and embarrassment if not danger to the business and industrial enterprises that are really entitled to protection. The president feels that he is under an international obligation to summon an extra session. He will do this reluctancely because it is bringing into power a Democratic House and a Senate much more nearly Democratic than the present Senate.

But if the Senate should fail to act, the president feels under his agreement with the Canadian government to use his utmost endeavor to have the reciprocity agreement confirmed, he will be compelled to call an extra session. They would naturally feel that they can not extemporize a revision of the tariff schedules. The light remark that you can prepare a tariff bill over night, or two weeks or a month, everyone knows to be utterly unfounded.

"But what an extra session is likely to mean is a constant agitation and continuous investigation into the industries that are made possible by protection and interference with their business that bodes no good for business at The consequence is that if any one should prevent action on the recimost injurious to those industries which dent's fault. "In conclusion, I desire to call atwith its attendant warning:

There are those conservative protectionists who hang back from an approval of this agreement on the ground wedge to let in free trade. My own view is that no step could be taken more in the interest of a reasonable policy of protection than the approval of this treaty. The very existence of the poley depends on our abolition of the tarwhere it is not really needed under the principle of the last Republican plat-. If we persist in retaining it in these times of high prices and gradually exhausting food supply and base our retention of protection principles we shall rouse an opposition that will know no moderation and will not cease radical sconomic changes until it has removed from the statute book the last trace of a protective tariff."

While it is the evident purpose of the president, in permitting the announcement of Mr. McCall to avoid an extra session by inducing senators to act upon the agreement, it is the opinon of many about the capital that in all probability the statement has come too late. With appropriation bills badcongested for the popular election f senators coming up daily as the unfinished business the chances for action spon reciprocity agreement seem slight. but that, of course, conditions may one case is summand the family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, bill, which would mean an additional annual expenditure of about $50,000,000 and which President Taft threatens to veto, was taken up for consideration, temporarily displacing the resolution for a constitutional amendment in regard to the direct election of senators. no progress was possible even in discussion of the pension bill, owing to the fact that at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, according to previous formal agreement, the rest of the day's session was devoted to eulogies of Senator Dolliver and Senator Clay.

The decision of the Senate finance committee at its meeting Saturday morning to grant hearings on the reciprocity bill to-day and to-morrow makes chief obstacle to the passage of the bill through the Senate, is on duty again to-day and there seems to be a tacit agreement that the bill is to be reported to the Senate on Wednesday, which will give practically nine legislative days for its possible consideration before the session ends.

The report is current that the Lorimer forces are entering into a combination with the antireciprocity senators for the double purpose of protecting Lorimer's seat and of defeating the reciprocity agreement. The accuracy of this report is open to question, particularly as a considerable number of those previously known to be for Lorimer have also been classified as opposed to reciprocity. In order to further strengthen 1. f. Underwood papers of Danville that they are advising likely that votes might be offered "for" the Lorimer ranks, it would seem more rather than "against" the Canadian agreement. What is entirely clear, however, is that there is a reaction in Lorimer's favor, and there is decidedly less confidence than existed a few days ago that he will be unseated. This reaction is in part due to Senator Root's speech attacking Lorimer and in part to Senator Bailey's speech defending him. Sen-ator Bailey's speech appeared in full in the Congressional Record, and in spite of unfair historical parallels, it proves on its appearance in cold type, to be an even stronger argument than had been expected. Congressman McCall of Massachusetts, a cantious man and one sparing in the use of adjectives, described t Saturday as "tremendously powerful." Senator Root's speech now appears to have been a blunder in making too vio lent and broad an onslaught upon the Illinois legislature and the good name of the state. It is said in the Lorimer camp that they can definitely name two or more senators whose votes have been

VENEER INDUSTRY OF UNITED STATES

Total for 1909 Was a Considerable Ad vance over the Preceding Year, Reports Government Department.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 29.—The outlay for veneer material, both domestic and imported woods, during the calendar year 1909, was $8,077,516, as against $7,891,431 in 1908 and $6,436,237 in 1907. The number of establishments engaged in the manufacture of veneers during 1909 was 637, an increase of 235 and 267 over the number reporting in 1908 and 1907, respectively.

This information appears in a preliminary comparative report covering 1900, 1908 and 1907, which was transmitted to-day to Census Director Durand by Chief Statistician William M. Steuart under whose supervision it was prepared by J. E. Whelchel, expert special agent of the division of manufactures. In cooperation with the forest service of the department of agriculture, the bureau of the census annually collects and pub lishes statistics pertaining to the group

The rapid rate at which this industry has grown during recent years continued through 1909, the showing for that year disclosing not only a substantial increase in the number of mills, but also the fact that in point of geographical distribu-tion the industry has extended from 30 states in 1907 to 34 states in 1909,

Although vencer manufacture was enaged in during 1909 in practically every state in which lumber timber occurs in commercial quantity, nearly three fourths of the material consumed during year was reported from the 11 states Illinois, Michigan, Florida, Indiana. Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, New York, Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky ranking in point of quantity consumed in the order named. Furthermore. these states, the group composed of Il-linois, Indians, Florida and Michigan alone contributed nearly one-third o the total, showing that the industry is still to some extent localized.

A point of interest in this connection is the fact that although the three states, New York, Illinois and Indiana reported but 20.9 per cent. of the total quantity of material consumed during 1909, their contribution formed 42.8 per cent, of the total cost of all veneer ma terial consumed during that year. showing is due directly to the fact that the manufacture of veneers from import ed and high-priced cabinet woods, espe cially mahogany, is to a large extent centered in these three states. Illinois alone reporting more than half of the mahogany consumed during 1000 and New York following with nearly one-

New York led in the consumption of both Spanish cedar and Circassion walnut, reporting more than three-fifths of the total of each of these species.

For many years the manufacture of reneers was mainly from the imported cabinet woods and to a limited extent from such domestic woods as walnut, oak and bird's-ere maple. The extension of the industry has been more in the nature of the development of a new industry, the large increase in the total anmade up chiefly of domestic woods which are converted into veneer stock, from which are made baskets, berry crates, packing cases of various kinds, furniture. Rebel Chiefs in the Hills-No Plans for material for laminated lumber, barrels It is this branch of the industry which is widely distributed and in which the growth is most rapid. Among the materials reported as consumed during 1900 are found thirty-six species of domestic woods and eleven of nported woods, making a total practially equal to the number of wood speutilized during the same year in the United States as lumber material.
